

TO TEACH

Is to share who you are; to impart the knowledge of all that has informed you with a passion that inspires the disinterested heart to listen, and the reluctant will to learn.

To Teach...

Is to nurture the growing spirits; to foster insight that perceives the rhythms of life...and couples the preparations of the inner self to endure -- with dignity - the adversity that wisely trains our souls.

To Teach...

Is to correct with patience; to discipline with fairness; to make each inappropriate action an opportunity for instruction - an encouraged new seed of positive growth.

To Teach...

Is to empower with substance rather than image - replacing the corruption of shallow influence with a standard of good character that maintains the integrity of one's convictions even if one should stand alone.

To Teach...

*Is to be chosen to a path most noble in life that deeply rewards
The faithful guides who lead throughout its essential course.*

May all whom you teach grow richly by your example.

Brian Johnson

SHO-SHIN

“FRESH MIND”